America Leads.

"There is more co-operation in the United States than in any other country, and it is used here even for the largest undertakings. The gathering and distribution of news by The Associated Press is the most striking example in the world of co-operation conducted on a grand scale without lucrative object. The life insurance companies, with their millions of policyholders and billions of dollars of assets, and the mutual savings banks and building and loan associations, with their stupendous totals of deposits, savings and reserves, put most of their funds of organized thrift under co-operative management, while trade unionism (the oldest kind of co-operation) permeates the laboring classes. These are city-centered, but do not constitute all the co-operative activities. Co-operation appears in inconceivably varied and innumerable enterprises. The protection of the levees from breaks is in some of the states bordering the Mississippi river a co-operative work. Farmers' organizations for safeguarding mutual interests are numerous, while rural co-operation for business has already made substantial progress, but chiefly for marketing fruits and the manufacture and disposal of milk products.

A Strange Thing.

"If American farmers should awake to the full realization of its possibilities, they would soon be using co-operation in all their industrial, commercial and financial affairs relating to agriculture. With the splendid examples in the city before them, it is strange that they have lain dormant so long. Co-operation may, of course, be practiced through a corporation or in a partnership, but the association is its best breeding ground and nursery. In the United States, however, the purposes and ordinary banking have been content with the corporation and partnership. The propagandists should broaden their views and strive to make law for associations whatever may now be done through these other two forms of organization. Furthermore, if the wish to see the co-operation reach its highest development, they should advocate a modification of the anti-trust laws as would permit co-operative associations to combine."

BRIDGE QUESTION DISCUSSED BY COUNCIL

City Engineer Says Damaged Structure Can Be Repaired for $150.

The safety of the Main and Pike street bridges crossing Elk creek was discussed at a special meeting of the city council Monday night, and a committee of three was appointed by Mayor G. H. Gordon to inspect the two bridges and make a report at a meeting of the council tonight. The members of the committee are John A. Flaherty, C. H. Harding and J. T. Swager. Frank D. McEntee, engineer, and L. C. Crile, city attorney, are to assist the councilmanic committee in arriving at a decision.

Monday night's meeting of the council was called as a result of the accident of Saturday afternoon when an automobile struck the Main street bridge with such force as to knock one of the supports from its foundation. Since the Main street bridge has been closed to vehicles, the traffic over the Pike street bridge has been doubled and fears were entertained that it would not be able to stand the strain. Therefore an officer was placed on duty to regulate traffic, allowing only one vehicle to cross at the time.

The city engineer was present at a meeting of the bridge committee, which took place immediately after the adjournment of council, and stated that the old bridge could be repaired and put in as good a condition as it was before the accident for not to exceed $150. The city has no funds with which to build new bridges at this time and it is the consensus of
